ALUMNI NEWS / BRYAN COLLEGE / DAYTON, TENNESSEE

WILLIAMSON SISTERS CONFIRM COLLEGE CHOICE OF PARENTS & GRANDFATHER

Thirty-seven current Bryan students are second generation students who have one or both parents on the alumni rolls of Bryan. Of these, two are also third generation students by virtue of having a grandfather who is a Bryan graduate. These sisters, Naomi and Cindy, who were also students last year, are the daughters of Richard '60 and Faith (Allem) '70 Williamson and granddaughters of Dr. Warren Allem '57.

Since Naomi will be leaving Bryan this year as the first third generation graduate to have both parents and one grandparent who are graduates, we have recorded an interview with Naomi and Cindy to share with alumni.

In passing it should be noted that two earlier graduates have associations which give them third generation claim in a more limited relationship. David Honeywell '59 of Three Rivers, Michigan, was preceded at Bryan by his mother Joy Bedford Honeywell x'35, and his grandmother, Mabel Bedford x'34, who were both students at the same time in the early 30s, but neither of them graduated. Another third generation representative is Harold Morgan, Jr. '67, whose mother, Katherine (Arnold) Morgan '61, and his grandmother, Bertha Morgan '34 were both graduates.

From this year's third generation graduate and her sister we share the following interview:

How did you feel, Naomi, about attending a college that your parents had attended before you?

Naomi: At first I didn't want to come. At my freshman college year, my parents said, "Please go to Bryan." But I said, "No, I just don't want to go." My concept of a Christian was a lot different than it is now. So I went to a secular college my freshman year. That's when I really found the Lord personally. I had been saved when I was six, but I really met the Lord then at college. He said, "Go to Bryan," and so I came. It was a blessing to find the fellowship that was here, and now I really love Bryan. I realize my parents were right all along about my coming here.

Well, Cindy, what did you think about coming to Bryan where your parents attended and your sister was still here?

Cindy: I didn't think about any other college. I always thought about coming here when I was in high school. Then when Naomi came and told me more about it, that made me want to come even more. So Bryan was the only school I even considered.

Can you remember any stories that your Mom and Dad told you about their experiences in college?

Cindy: One time Mom and Dad said they got campused because they had their ankles crossed when they were dating on a picnic. They couldn't talk together for a whole week, and they often kid about that.

Naomi: I remember that they said you had to have lights out by eleven o'clock, and then Daddy told us he was on the cross country team.

Now that you are about to graduate, Naomi, what do you have in mind for the future?

Naomi: Well, it is exciting in a way, just to see what the Lord has planned. After I graduate I plan to go to Japan as a summer missionary and possibly I could stay for a year. Then I plan to come back and try to raise some money to pay up the loans that I have had to come to Bryan. Then possibly I will go on for my master's in either social work or child psychology—probably social work. Then I could go back to the mission field or whatever the Lord has in mind. It's really unclear right now; but this is a general plan that the Lord showed me at Urbana, which has helped to keep me stable.

Tell us more about your recent experience at Urbana.

Naomi: Well, it was just a blessing. I rode 24 hours in a Teen Missions bus with a load of people to the conference. I think that just being at Urbana showed me that I want to stay in God's work and possibly in missions. I am ready to do that, if it is what the Lord wants.

Cindy, have you made any plans about your future?

Cindy: Yes, I am majoring in elementary education and plan to teach.

What grade do you think you would like to teach?

Cindy: Third grade.

What is your favorite subject to teach?

Cindy: Social studies and English, but in elementary school I like all the subjects. When it gets to college level, that's different.

What about your brothers, do you think they might attend Bryan?

Naomi: I really wish Mike would. He is a junior now at Georgia Southwestern. He's playing baseball there and he is pretty set with that. And Steve, our younger brother, is planning to go to Naval Academy.

Do you think of anything else that you would like to share in connection with your associations at Bryan?

Naomi: If someone were to ask me what I have learned or gained the most out of being at Bryan, I would say it is the fellowship that has taught me about loving one another with a sincere heart and fervently praying for and encouraging one another. Here you see the Bible acted out in every day life. In the world when you do favors for people, they don't seem to appreciate it at times. But here you get a sense of what true Christian love and fellowship really is, so that when I leave I will better understand how life should be. I have a high regard for Bryan because it has taught me who God is and how to honor Him the most.

Do you have anything to add, Cindy?

Cindy: It is like Naomi said, that the fellowship here with friends is very special and the teachers really care about me as an individual. You can tell when they care by the way they talk to you and speak to you individually. I really appreciate that. It makes you feel that the subject is more interesting when they really care about you.

Naomi: You asked earlier whether my parents forced me to come. I think that is the whole key in my opinion, because when I was ready to come, I could readily accept everything. I think that is the problem with so many Christian parents when they say to a son or daughter that he or she must go to a Christian school or they won't pay the tuition. Then the child becomes rebellious because they wanted to go somewhere else. That might have happened to me my freshman year when I preferred to go to a secular school. I realize now I wasn't ready for Bryan, but after going to a secular school, then coming to Bryan was God's timing for me.

Do you have any comments about your grandfather Allem who attended Bryan and was also a staff member?

Naomi: We really haven't seen our grandparents very many times. We visit them occasionally, but we haven't gotten to know them very well. I just learned this summer that my grandfather was on the public relations staff.

Thanks so much, Naomi and Cindy, for sharing your candid thoughts and opinions about being second and even third generation students at Bryan. I hope, Naomi, that your parents and your grandparents can all be present when you graduate on May 8 this spring.

ALUMNI ENTERTAIN SENIORS

Three dinners sponsored by the Bryan Alumni Association have been given to honor members of the Class of 1982. In December the guests were those who completed their work in December and shared with a group of seventy persons to enjoy a steak dinner in Dayton and a challenging testimony by Albert Page, national director of Metro development for Christian Business Men's Committee in Chattanooga.

In February a group of forty-eight persons heard District Attorney Stephen Bevil speak on the subject of "Religious Freedom" as compared to freedom for Christianity, which is often denied.

A third dinner was scheduled for March 22 with an anticipated assembly of some eighty alumni and seniors to share fellowship and a message by Dr. Robert Benson, professor of education at the University of Tennessee in Chattanooga.

TWO STUDY TOURS IN MAY

Two study tours, each earning three hours credit in fine arts, are available at Bryan this spring—one to study American culture including literature, art, and architecture in the eastern states under Dr. Ruth Kantzer, and the other to study in Europe with Dr. John Bartlett.

Dr. Kantzer's American tour will begin on May 14 and conclude May 26 with stops in eleven eastern coastal cities and going as far north as Massachusetts. Expenses for the tour will be reduced through arranging accommodations in churches.

Dr. Bartlett's "Part of Europe" tour is scheduled for May 14-29 to visit London, Paris, Amsterdam, Frankfurt, Lucerne, Rome, Venice, and Florence.

Dr. Bartlett also plans to lead a Holy Land tour to Israel, Egypt, and Greece from June 12-27.

For details on these tours, write to the Alumni Office, or call the tour directors at (615) 775-2041.

PROFESSORS NEEDED

Bryan College needs two new faculty members to begin in the fall of 1982. They, of course, must be committed to Christ and must share the college's Biblical stance on life and learning. Preference will be given to persons holding the doctorate.

One person is needed in business, holding a D.B.A. (Doctor of Business Administration) or a Ph.D. in some area of business, economics, management, marketing, or the like. Business and teaching experience are also desirable.

Another person is needed in earth science and physics. This person should have a Ph.D. (or an Ed.D. or D.A. with strong emphasis in the subject matter area) in geology, astronomy, physics, or the like (not chemistry or biology). Prior teaching experience is desirable.

Interested individuals should write to Dr. Karl E. Keefer, Vice President for Academic Affairs, Bryan College, Dayton, TN 37321

LORA LEE SPURLOCK '57 is spending four months traveling to speak in Christian schools and colleges to challenge young people to commitment to Christ on behalf of foreign missions. She spoke in the Bryan chapel on February 23. Her itinerary includes Orlando, Florida; Oklahoma City; Abilene, Texas; Detroit, Chattanooga, and southern California. Her daughter Sandra (Sam) is a sophomore transfer student at Bryan this year.

MALCOLM '57 and Rhoda BRADSHAW continue to serve in Manila, Philippines, but they are now affiliated with World Vision. Mac is Regional Associate Director for Evangelism, seeking to insure that the ministries of World Vision in Asia communicate the Good News to the communities they serve. Rhoda has become the director of the CRIBS program, a Christian fostercare agency in Manila for lost and abandoned infants and small children. CRIBS has sixty children in its programs, who are being made ready for adoptive families. With their own four children all adults—the youngest is a senior in high school—the Bradshaws have started a new family by adopting two girls, Maria Teresa, who is five, and Michelle, four. The Joy of the Lord Community, which they joined five years ago when there were 35 members, has now grown to nearly 500. This community has a Catholic Fellowship and an Evangelical Fellowship working together as evangelical Christians, in one of the most potent forces in spreading the Gospel in the islands of the Philippines.

RACHAEL O'MERA '58 shared with fellow believers in the construction of a small church building in the town of Ninilchik, Alaska. They hoped to have the electricity attached by Christmas to the wiring and fixtures that were ready in October. Rachael is encouraged that individuals in the community are responding to Bible study and coming into new maturity through hearing and practicing the Word of God in their daily lives.

Gary and ALICE (TOBELMANN) '59 FREDRICKS are directing a team of 18 Campus Crusade members this year in the Dallas area, while Gary continues to study at Dallas Seminary. They had special rejoicing last fall when a Chinese friend Jiang decided to put his trust in Christ. For a year he had been searching and studying the Bible on his own and also with Gary each week.

DAN x'63 and SHELBY (SKINNER) '61 HARRISON ended the year 1981 at the Urbana Missions Conference as representatives of Wycliffe Bible Translators. Dan is Vice President for Development and North American Area Director for Wycliffe with Shelby as his assistant at the international office in Dallas, Texas. During the year Dan traveled with a companion to minister in Japan, Taiwan, the Philippines, and Singapore. In Japan Wycliffe has 20 missionaries and they hope to see 100 Japanese involved. In the Philippines more than 40 Filipinos are involved with Wycliffe. Some of the tribal people reached earlier are now missionaries to nearby groups. In Singapore a Wycliffe office was opened and two Singaporeans are now Wycliffe members. Shelby is putting together the SIL Annual Report to communicate the nature and motivation of Wycliffe's ministry to use with governments of countries where Wycliffe is working or wants to work.

NAOMI GLOCK x'61 arrived in Suriname on September 18 after a furlough in the States. She was asked by the Suriname government to help train literacy supervisors and instructors for a nation-wide literacy thrust. She and another Wycliffe translator taught seven hours a day for two weeks. Naomi's instruction included practical demonstrations on preparing reading materials, running the mimeograph machine, teaching from primers—all in her not-so-fluent Dutch. Her schedule for December through April includes checking the translation of Galatians and Philippians, revising the prison epistles and James, attending the annual conference at Paramaribo, attending a translation workshop, and working on the translation of Hebrews in the Saramaccan language.

JOHN '63 and BUNNY (WELSH) '64 RHOAD live in Langley, B.C., where John is pastor of a four-year-old church. They are in the process of erecting a church building, which they hope to use early in 1982. Bunny is teaching school as well as managing the household for their family of eight—six children ages 6 to 16. John is a member of the school board for the fastest growing school district in Canada. Their family shared in a Rhoad family reunion last June with John's parents in Alexandria, Virginia.

JANET CLAYCOMB '64 returned to Jamaica in September to continue teaching at Iona High School in St. Mary. She teaches religious knowledge to three grades on Tuesdays and Thursdays and helps with administrative matters. She has a weekly Bible class for ladies and a Bible club for children, counsels with students, speaks weekly in chapel, and shares in the ministry in two area churches.

DAVID BABBITT x'63 graduated from East Texas State University and worked for fourteen years in the secular world. He responded recently to God's call and expects to graduate in May 1982 from Dallas Seminary. He hopes to teach in a Christian college.

MILO MACKO '67 of Hamilton, Ohio, recently passed the state license exam to become a life insurance agent in order to pursue part-time work in this field. He has dropped coaching duties but continues teaching school for the fifteenth year.

D. G. x'67 and Ellie HAASE continue their missionary-teaching ministry at Rift Valley Academy in Kijabe, Kenya, in their seventh year. In addition to their own family of three children, they have adopted for the year eight seventh graders to share in fellowship times. D. G. is teaching history and related subjects. The Haases also share in the sponsoring of the ninth grade through to graduation and all the activities involved.

RON '68 and Roberta HEFNER have moved to Iron Mountain, Michigan, where Ron is pastor of the Randville Bible Church in the Upper Peninsula.

70's

PAUL '70 and DREMA (ROWSEY) x'72 STONE moved in September to Princeton, West Virginia, where Paul became pastor of the Princeton Bible Church. They have three daughters—Ginger, 10, Tracy, 7, and Cherstin, 4.

Des and LYNNE (STEVENS) '71 HARPER continued their ministry with the Logos on recent visits in Taiwan, Philippines (where their daughter, Sheila Joy, was born), East Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand, Bangladesh, and India. During the past year they especially enjoyed the six weeks' visit of Lynne's parents, so that Mom Stevens could help when the baby arrived and Dad Stevens ministered on the Logos to the staff and also in conferences for local people and in churches ashore. In February the Harpers left their ship to visit Des's family in Ireland for six months and then to come to the States for about nine months.

SARAH ABERNETHY x'72 has been serving as a missionary with International Missions in Kenya. She came on furlough in November to her home in Salisbury, North Carolina. She is waiting on the Lord for direction as to whether to return to Kenya or go to the Far East. She is encouraged with physical progress since a doctor in Nairobi finds her heart to be very strong. In 1977 she had been turned down for missionary service because of a heart murmur.

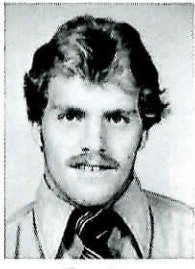

STEPHEN '73 and BARBARA (VAN SICE) '73 JOHANSEN moved to Newburgh, New York, since Steve is stationed at West Point as the dentist for the clinic at Stewart, a sub-post of West Point. They completed a tour with the Army in Germany and returned to the states on Memorial Day, 1981.

SANDRA (NEWMAN) '75 and Nard PUGYAO rejoice that the adoption process for Steven has been completed. He is now two years old and growing fast, and learning to talk—a real walkie-talkie! Sandy has been teaching P. E. and art at the Wycliffe Bagabag Center school. Nard has had lots of flying time recently since one of the pilots went on a helicopter survey for three weeks.
