

was located there (Num 26:33). Sometimes Tell el-Muḥaffar (1707.2054) has been identified as being the city of Hopher, a large tell with remains of the Late Bronze and Iron Ages, but Hopher could also be the name of a region. Jerome provides no information exceeding the biblical description (Sit. 141.23).

Bibliography: ■ Bekkum, K. van, From Conquest to Coexistence (Culture and History of the Ancient Near East 45; Leiden 2011). ■ Fritz, V., "Die sogenannte Liste der besiegten Könige in Josua 12," ZDPV 85 (1969) 136–61. ■ Kamlah, J., "Die Liste der Regionalfürsten in 1 Kön 4,7–19 als historische Quelle für die Zeit Salomos," BN 106 (2001) 57–78. ■ Rösel, H. N., "Zu den 'Gauen' Salomos," ZDPV 100 (1984) 84–8.

Erasmus Gaß

Hopher (Place)

Hopher (MT Ḥēper, LXX Οφερο), meaning "water-hole" or "place of pits," is a Canaanite city-state whose king, according to the Bible, was defeated by Joshua (Josh 12:17). It appears in the book of Kings as the third Solomonic district governed by Ben-Hesed along with Arruboth and Socoh (1 Kgs 4:10). Hopher was believed to be situated in the coastal plains at eṭ-Ṭaiyibe (1514.1859) or Tell Ibšār (1415.1975). But the land of Hopher must have spanned the Manasseh hill country because the tribal allotment of the granddaughters of Hopher