

HIGHEST HONOR... Boston attorney Dudley Weiss, instrumental in helping RIT acquire the Bernard C. Middleton Collection, was the recipient of the 1987 Nathaniel Rochester Society award. The award, the highest honor the society bestows, is given to an individual who contributes to RIT in an outstanding and significant manner. Weiss also made it possible for RIT to house the collection in the addition to the Wallace Memorial Library through grant funding from the Frank M. Barnard Foundation. A Channel 8 reporter interviews Weiss in the booktesting lab he helped establish in the School of Printing Management and Sciences in 1976. Equipment in the lab tests the physical strength of books in a number of ways, from tumbling books to pulling individual pages. The lab was later named in Weiss's honor.

McFarlane Links Nuclear Arms Talks and SDI

The latest round of talks between the U.S. and Soviet Union to reduce nuclear arms is a direct result of the Strategic Defense Initiative, says Robert McFarlane, former national security adviser to President Reagan. The 1986-87 William A. Kern Professor in Communications, McFarlane delivered his third and final lecture to a full house in Ingle Auditorium, April 8. His speech was entitled "How Does the Strategic Defense Initiative Fit into U.S. Strategic Planning?"

After the Soviets left the bargaining table in Geneva in 1984, McFarlane said, the U.S. began investing in SDI, with budget appropriations of $1.4 billion in 1984, $2.8 billion in 1985, and $3.4 billion in 1986. Since the U.S. began to invest in SDI, he said, "the Soviet Union came back to the table, and has begun to deal in earnest on the questions of reducing—for the first time in history—the level of offensive nuclear weapons."

"For the first time in the post-war nuclear age, we've begun to talk seriously about building fewer [nuclear weapons], rather than continuing to build more. And that's no small accomplishment...." already you owe to SDI."

According to McFarlane, SDI is necessary for four reasons: it is a military necessity; it counters the Soviet Union's SDI research; it reorients U.S. military strategy to high technology, an area where the U.S. has an advantage over the Soviet Union; and it would induce arms control negotiations.

He stated that SDI can be used as leverage to reduce nuclear arms. McFarlane said the U.S. should promise the Soviets that they will not deploy the space-based SDI as long as both sides reduce nuclear weapons to 3,000 each and

Publishing Award Honors Tribune Chief

Stanton R. Cook, president and chief executive officer of the Tribune Co. and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, has been chosen as the 1987 recipient of RIT's Isaiah Thomas Award for outstanding contributions to the newspaper publishing industry.

The award will be presented Thursday, April 30, during Isaiah Thomas Day ceremonies on campus. Highlighting the event will be an address and award ceremony at 7 p.m. in the College-Alumni Union, to which the Institute community and general public are invited. A reception will precede the award ceremony at 5:30 p.m. in the CAU cafeteria. Students and faculty will have an opportunity to meet Cook at 10:30 a.m. in the newspaper lab, Frank E. Gannett Memorial Building, room A-161. An educational session—"Challenge and Opportunities: The Manpower Needs and Skills for the Newspaper Industry in the Next Decade"—will take place with industry leaders from 2-3:30 p.m. in Webb Auditorium.

Cook will be the ninth recipient of the award, which is presented annually through the Newspaper Production Management Program.

"RIT is delighted to honor Stanton Cook with the Isaiah Thomas Award," said Dr. Lothar Engelmann, acting dean, College of Graphic Arts and Photography. "The award symbolizes the highest quality of professionalism in the newspaper industry and represents all the dreams and aspirations of our students. His visit will certainly be an inspiration to us all."

Cook joined the Chicago Tribune as a production engineer in April 1951. By 1967 he had been elected a vice president of the company, and in 1972 he was elected president and a director of the Tribune Co., parent company of the Tribune group. Cook went on to become publisher of the Chicago Tribune and was elected president and chief executive officer of the Tribune Co. and chairman and chief executive officer of the Chicago Tribune Co. in 1974.

The Isaiah Thomas Award is named for the patriot and printer, who established The Massachusetts Spy in 1779. Thomas continued his career after the Revolution and in 1810 wrote The History of Printing in America, which is still in print and still regarded as the basic source in early American printing and publishing.

Previous award recipients include: Alvah H. Chapman Jr., chairman and chief executive officer of Knight-Ridder Inc.; Otis Chandler, chairman and editor-in-chief of the Times-Mirror Co.; Arthur Ochs Sulzberger, chairman and publisher of The New York Times; Katharine Graham, chairman and chief executive officer, Washington Post Co.; and Allen H. Neuharth, chairman, Gannett Co.

'Best Event Ever' Stirs RIT Spirit

On April 24 at dawn the RIT campus will awake to 4,000 multi-color balloons, launching "The Big Bash," which is hoped to be the best social event ever to hit the campus. The event is the result of a student challenge to the administration on who could sponsor the most exciting event at RIT. The Student Directorate will provide a day of events to raise both student consciousness and money for worthy causes in Rochester.

The balloons will be formed into a butterfly sculpture half the size of a football field. With the help of documentation and video taping, students hope to gain a spot for RIT in the Guinness Book of World Records for a feat never before accomplished. The butterfly will be erected over the traffic circle on campus.

At 11 a.m., for a lunchtime luau, students will don Hawaiian garb and roller skates and wait on faculty and staff in the cafeteria. A campus open house will be held from 2-3:45 p.m., with tours of the 7th floor in the George Eastman Building. At 3:45 faculty, staff and students will be able to purchase helium balloons from various booths on campus. They'll attach their names to the balloons, release them and see how far they travel. The proceeds of the balloon sale will be donated to the Ronald McDonald House.

The day will end with a variety show, in which administrators and students will pit their talents and versatility against each other in a talent show in the College-Alumni Union from 7:30-10 p.m. Ten judges have been selected, five from each side, to determine the overall winners of the competition. There will be no charge for admission, but contributions will be asked at the end of the performance for donation to the Student Emergency Loan Fund. An award ceremony and celebration will follow the competition.

Over 300 Faculty and Staff Honored for Service

A special ceremony was held Wednesday, April 1 to honor 309 faculty and staff who have given long and continuous service to the Institute. Individuals whose anniversary dates occurred between May 1, 1986 and April 30, 1987 were recognized at the ceremony and received certificates from Dr. Thomas Plough, provost and vice president for Academic Affairs, who was acting on behalf of President Rose.

Staff are recognized at five years of service; faculty are recognized at 10

Holocaust Memorial Features Author, Nazi Crime Authority

Nazi hunter and author Charles R. Allen Jr., America's foremost authority on Nazi war criminals, will be the keynote speaker at the Department of Campus Ministries' annual Interfaith Holocaust Memorial Observance, Monday, April 27.

Allen's speech, which is free and open to all, takes place at 8 p.m. in the Allen Memorial Chapel, Kilian J. and Caroline F. Schmitt Interfaith Center. As part of the observance, a Holocaust memorial service is scheduled at noon in the Allen Memorial Chapel.

Allen's writing, speaking and investigative reporting have focused the world spotlight on Nazi war criminals such as Ivan Demjanjuk, who is being tried in Israel for his part in the slaughter of a million Jews at a German death camp. He has also called attention to the alleged Nazi connections of Kurt Waldheim, former secretary general of the United Nations, and has accused Patrick Buchanan, former White House communications director, of attempting to thwart U.S. Nazi prosecution efforts.

The author of more than 1,000 articles published in worldwide periodicals, Allen has written 11 books and served as senior editor of The Nation.

Sandy Loeffler, program coordinator for RIT's Hillel Foundation, emphasizes that the Holocaust memorial is geared toward a broad audience. "Rather than organizing an event entirely for the Jewish community, we're hoping to draw from the entire community. Anyone interested in social justice will find Charles Allen an important man to hear."

In addition to the RIT Hillel Foundation, Department of Campus Ministries, the second annual Interfaith Holocaust Memorial is sponsored by the College of Liberal Arts' criminal justice program, NTID Speakers Series, Jewish Student Coalition, Jewish Community Federation of Rochester, Bureau of Jewish Education, Rochester Holocaust Commission, Jewish Community Center, Commission of Inter-religious Relationships and Genesee Ecumenical Ministries.

Distinguished Historian To Give Kearsse Lecture

Dr. Arthur S. Link

Dr. Arthur S. Link, the George Henry Davis 1986 Professor of American History at Princeton University, will deliver the seventh annual Kearsse Distinguished Lecture at 3 p.m., Monday, May 4, in Webb Auditorium.

The College of Liberal Arts sponsors the Kearsse Distinguished Lecture and Student Honor Awards Ceremony to recognize students who have written papers or produced projects of outstanding quality in their liberal arts courses.

Link, the director of the projected 65-volume Papers of Woodrow Wilson, will deliver a speech on the nation's 28th president. He also will meet with history faculty and staff and will visit several history classes to meet with students during his three-day visit at RIT.

The author of 30 books and numerous articles and editor of several major volumes, Link is twice winner of the coveted Bancroft Prize for best biography—in 1956 for Wilson, The New Freedom, and in 1960 for Wilson: The Struggle for Neutrality, 1914-1915. He was appointed Edwards Professor of American History by Princeton in 1965 and Davis Professor in 1976.

Link was named a Fulbright 40th Anniversary Distinguished Lecturer this year, a rare honor and achievement. He also was twice named a Rosenwald Fellow and has been a Guggenheim Fellow and Rockefeller Fellow as well. He has lectured widely in the U.S., Britain, Europe, and Japan.

ROTC to Host Review, Tattoo

The Air Force and Army ROTC will host the RIT President's Review and Tattoo on April 28 at the varsity soccer and lacrosse field.

The ceremonies, which will begin at 4:30 p.m., will feature three aircraft fly-bys, including a World War II P-40E Warhawk fighter plane from the National War Plane Museum in Geneseo.

President Rose will review the cadets and present awards to the outstanding cadets, based on performance in their corps or battalion.

Other New York National Guard aircraft included in fly-bys are: four F-4 Phantoms from the 107th Fighter Interceptor Group and four A-10 Thunderbolt II planes from the 174th Tactical Fighter Wing.

Performances will be presented by the 98th Division Army Band, the C.A. Palmer Fife and Drum Corps (Palmyra), and four historic infantry and artillery units.

In case of inclement weather, the ceremonies will be held in the Frank Ritter Memorial Ice Arena.

Parking in D Lot will be restricted on April 28.

Chem. Prof. Awarded Productivity Grant

Faced with the challenge of teaching dynamic concepts in magnetic resonance—the technology that allows medical experts to look inside the body without using x-rays—Joseph Hornak, assistant professor of chemistry in the College of Science, turned to animation.

His idea to use the moving pictures and objects available through computer animation earned an $11,300 productivity grant from the Institute Committee on Projects Relating to Productivity.

"All the hospitals are using nuclear magnetic imaging. It's a hot field that's going to mushroom, and our students should learn about it," says Hornak. "But it's difficult to teach the concepts because you need to use moving pictures, and you just can't do that on a blackboard."

Computer animation, he explains, "looks like a technical 'cartoon' " where a series of pictures and images are displayed in fast sequence as if they are moving."

Hornak is writing a series of computer programs with colored, moving pictures. The final package will be available to students on a floppy disc that fits into a personal computer. He expects the project to be completed in about a year.

"The major benefit is being able to teach dynamic processes...more efficiently than by using still picture explanations," Hornak wrote in his proposal. "After all, if a picture is worth a thousand words, just think how much a moving picture is worth."

The Institute Committee on Projects Relating to Productivity encourages RIT faculty members to submit proposals for new and innovative teaching strategies. Based upon recommendations from the committee, funding is made available through the office of Dr. Thomas R. Plough, provost and vice president for academic affairs.

COMMUNICATOR OF THE YEAR... Associate Vice President Jack F. Smith, Communications, who served as chairman of the 3rd Annual Communicator of the Year Awards, invited NTID's Gerald Argetsinger (above) to entertain the crowd with a little magic. Recognizing excellence in all fields of communications, the April 6 gala attracted more than 500 people to the reception and ceremonies at GeVa Theatre. Awards were handed out in 17 categories, including the overall Communicator of the Year Award, presented to Vince Spezzano, publisher of the Gannett Rochester Newspapers. Smith won the award in 1985 and chaired the event last year as well. Other RIT participation included performance by the Twice in a Lifetime Players, also from NTID.

Funds Sought from Japanese Companies to Support Campaign

Japan has become the target of a major fund-raising initiative as part of RIT's capital campaign, Access to the Future.

President M. Richard Rose, Dr. C. J. Young, vice president for Development, and Dr. Robert Frisina, vice president and secretary of the Institute, recently completed a rigorous trip to the Orient in search of development support.

"For some time we have agreed that there are many companies in Japan who could support RIT's educational programs, particularly in high tech areas," said Rose. "Our job was to acquaint them with the benefits of both our programs and our graduates."

The president pointed to RIT's leadership position in microelectronic engineering, imaging science, photography and printing as areas that were explored with Japanese firms.

Among the companies were Konishiroku Photographic Ind. Co.; Dainippon Inc.; Fuji Photo Film Company, Ltd.; Yamatoya & Co., Ltd.; Minolta Camera Company, Ltd.; and Sanyo Electric, Inc. RIT representatives also visited with Shigeo Tojo, president of Tojo Kaikan, and his wife, and Masami Tojo, nephew of Shigeo Tojo and a 1979 graduate of the School of Photographic Arts and Sciences. The group visited Takashi Numakura, president of Yamatoya Limited, whose son Iwao also is an RIT graduate.

The Tojo family was responsible for establishing the oriental garden adjacent to the College of Graphic Arts and Photography.

As part of the trip Rose and Frisina continued on to China to visit Shanghai University of Technology, furthering the Institute's relationship with that university, and Zhejiang University in Hangzhou.

"We have great hopes of long-term relationships with companies in Japan and of convincing them that support of RIT's academic programs is in the best interest of international business development," said Young. "Our academic and business initiatives are playing a significant role in advancing both the campaign and our international student and faculty exchanges. This also will continue to keep RIT's profile on the international horizon."

Ward Gallery Exhibit Features Art Seniors

Twenty-five seniors in the School for American Craftsmen and the School of Art and Design will exhibit their artwork at Sibley's downtown Ward Gallery from April 24-May 8. Their work includes ceramics, wood, metals, glass, textiles and paintings in a variety of styles.

"This is the first time all the seniors in the School for American Craftsmen have shown their work together," says Polly Barker, a senior in ceramics and ceramic sculpture. "The work ranges from floral forms to geometric designs. Some of the subject matter is influenced by space themes and the solar system."

An opening reception will be held at the gallery on April 23 from 6-8 p.m.

Security Briefing Team To Lecture in May

The Air University Security Briefing Team will present a lecture in Ingle Auditorium on May 7 at 7 p.m.

The team informs the public of U.S. Air Force goals and explains the national security mission. It will present a slide show on the Soviet military build-up and their progress during the last 10 years in areas such as defense spending, the arms race and arms control. It will also cover U.S. strategic modernization, deterrence, TRIAD, and the nuclear issue.

"The Briefing Team's major premise is that current national security issues are without precedent, and our national well-being depends on an informed public," says Lt. Col. James W. Jacobs, professor of aerospace studies.

The event is sponsored by RIT's Air Force/ROTC.

COMMENCEMENT TICKETS

Commencement tickets are available and may be obtained in the following manner:

- Students— request from dean's office
- Faculty/Staff— request at reception desk in lobby of George Eastman Building
- Trustees— contact the president's office

FREE ICE CREAM... Shirley Gray, Instructional Media Services, was one of many Institute faculty and staff who enjoyed an ice cream treat on April 9, the kick-off day for RIT's United Way campaign. Sue Shanley, a member of the United Way Steering Committee, gives her information on the United Way Run/Walk, May 8.

Prizes Offered to Contestants In Annual United Way Run/Walk

Use a lunch hour to walk or run your way into shape and help a worthy cause at the same time.

RIT's fourth annual United Way Run/Walk will be held at noon on Friday, May 8. Participants can walk or run a three- or five-mile course on campus. The event begins in front of the College-Alumni Union, rain or shine.

Those who collect a minimum of $15 in pledges will receive a t-shirt. Prizes also will be awarded to the person who collects the highest number of pledges. Last year's winner collected $300.

The first-prize winner will receive a running suit, which is on display at Campus Connections. Other prizes, donated by Rochester area sport shops, the RIT recreation office and the RIT Sport Shop, include gift certificates, gym bags and free locker use at the RIT gym.

Awards also will be given for second and third place, along with special awards in surprise categories.

CALENDAR

Faculty/Staff Softball: The 1987 RIT Faculty/Staff Softball League is now forming. If you have a team that would like to join the league, or if you would like to become a member of an existing team, call Jim Wilson, -6241, for more information. This is a co-ed, slow-pitch, fun league. Join in the fun!

April 23-26-play: "Scapino," a fast-paced, physical, funny play will be presented by NTID at 8 p.m., April 23-25, and at 2:30 p.m. on April 26. Tickets ($2, students; $4, all others) will be available weekdays from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. beginning April 13 at the NTID Theatre Box Office. For further information or reservations, call -6254.

April 28-sports: Men's baseball game: RIT vs. U of R, 1 p.m. at home.

April 28-lecture: "Neutron Scattering from Microemulsions," by Dr. Michael Kotlarchyk of the Department of Physics; Chester F. Carlson Memorial Building (bldg. 8), room 2178, 1 p.m.

April 29-meeting: "Networking: Women Getting Together to Enhance Professional and Personal Lifestyles," a presentation by Carol Richardson, Electrical Engineering Technology, at the next meeting of the RIT Women's Network, 4:30 p.m., 1829 Room.

April 29-sports: Men's lacrosse team: RIT vs. Hobart College, 3:30 p.m., at home.

April 30-lecture: "The Constitution and Public Policy: The Welfare State and the State of Welfare," presented by Theodore Lowi, Gannett Professor, sponsored by the College of Liberal Arts, 7:30 p.m., Webb Auditorium, Frank E. Gannett Building.

May 7-meeting: "Toward a National Child Care Policy," a presentation by Lita Boudakian, director of the Horton Child Care Center, at the May meeting of the RIT Women's Network. Noon-1 p.m., Webb Auditorium.

H-Bomb Physicist Opposes SDI

Dr. Richard L. Garwin, physicist and long-time defense consultant, will give a public lecture, "Space Weapons or Arms Control: Which Way to Security," at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, May 5, in Ingle Auditorium.

Garwin contributed to the construction of the first hydrogen bomb and has worked on many offensive and defensive weapons systems and technologies, including the air-launched cruise missiles and defense against aircraft and ballistic missiles. An adjunct professor of physics at Columbia University, he has participated in arms-control negotiations for the U.S. government.

He believes the Strategic Defense Initiative is bad for the nation's security, technology, and economy. He maintains that the U.S. has a major interest in keeping all weapons out of space.

Cars at Good Prices, Rebates to RIT Buyers

RIT employees will get a special break on car purchases this weekend through the Institute's contracts with Budget Rent a Car of Rochester. According to William Batcheller, associate director of RIT Business Services and purchasing director, Budget will hold a wholesale-to-the-public sale on their fleet of rental cars, April 25 and 26. Budget will offer RIT employees a $200 rebate on their purchases.

Special discount coupons can be picked up from the Purchasing Office in building 99.

NEWSMAKERS

• Linda Tolan, School of Printing Management and Sciences, Irene Rios, College of Liberal Arts, and Dottie Hicks, Learning Development Center, presented a program at the North Atlantic Regional Conference of the National Advising Association. The program, "Easing the Transfer Process," focused on the unique information and support service needs of the transfer student.

• Zenon Elyjiw, senior technologist, T & E Center, will speak on color theory at the 35th annual meeting of the Web Offset Section, Printing Industries of America. The meeting, "The Color Connection—Web Offset," will take place May 18-20 at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto.

• Delegates to the 1987 conference of the Technical Association of the Graphic Arts (TAGA) in San Diego included Herb Phillips, director, and Zenon Elyjiw, senior technologist, of the T&E Center, and Robert Chung, assistant professor, College of Graphic Arts and Photography. Phillips was elected to his 10th term as TAGA secretary/treasurer.

• Kijana Crawford, associate professor of social work, College of Liberal Arts, lead two workshops on effective communications skills at the Jack and Jill Cluster Conference in Rochester. She also chairs the Special Project Committee of Jack and Jill, which received funding from IBM to sponsor a book project.

• John Morreal, associate professor of philosophy, gave an invited keynote presentation entitled "The Ethics of Humor" at the sixth International Humor Conference in Tempe, Ariz. This summer he will participate in an NEH seminar on "Humor in Cross-Cultural Perspective" at the University of California in Berkeley.

• Albert Paley, artist-in-residence, School for American Craftsmen, recently gave the keynote address at a national symposium, "Architectural Settings: A Place for Fine Crafts," in Denver, Colo. He also lectured on historical and contemporary work in the field and on his studio activities. The symposium was sponsored by the Metropolitan State College Art Department.

• Dr. Robert Morgan, associate professor of foundations in the College of Fine and Applied Arts, was guest editor of the March 1987 issue of New Observations, an art publication from New York City. He also recently received a juror's prize at the San Francisco Film Festival for his short film "Centurion."

Morgan has had two recent one-man shows: a retrospective exhibit of photographs at the CEPA Gallery in Buffalo, March 28-April 25; and an exhibit of his paintings at White Columns Gallery in New York City.

Morgan also has received a $3,500 National Endowment for the Humanities Fellowship for this summer to write a paper on performance theory at the University of Wisconsin.

• Janet Barnard, assistant professor, College of Business, published an article entitled "Leadership Is a Survival Skill" in the January 1987 issue of Administrative Management.

• Frank Cost, coordinator, printing and applied computer science, was appointed recently to the General Education Baccalaureate Degree Requirement Committee of the Policy Council.
